

2.8 Archive pages

This theme features special page templates to create the archives.

To create an archive page, go to Pages->Add New and choose the Archive template under the Page Attributes:

Each archive has its own template: we selected for each “post type” the best visualization. The specific post types can be displayed only through each specific template.

The template used to display a specific post type, can’t generally be used for another.

The available archive templates are:

1. Blog with sidebar
2. Blog without sidebar
3. Charts
4. Events
5. Podcasts
6. Videos
7. Shows
8. Team members

The amount of items per page is fixed for each post type, to match with the best standards of design and performance. The amounts of items per page is defined in the file functions.php

If you add any content to the archive page, it will only be visible in the first page of the archive. You can also add slideshows or other elements using the Visual Composer, to make your archive page more attractive.

Once you created an archive page, you can add it to a menu in Appearance->Menu.
